2017	Bondurant Development Inc.	Gateway to Chichaqua	Gateway Park is at the intersection of Highway 65 and Grant Street, the main entrance to Bondurant and the head of the planned recreational trail to Altoona. This is the most visible and demanding intersection in Bondurant; traffic counts over 13,400 cars pass Gateway Park daily, according to Iowa Department of Transportation (IDOT) 2016 statistics. Gateway Park will become a destination for families and trail users, with its relaxing over-sized swings, benches, native landscaping, tree shade and a unique lighting feature that changes throughout the year, all connected to the recreational trails and Bondurant's amenities such as the nearby Brick Street Market & Cafe. We will be maintaining the high level of design and material quality that was established by the recently completed Bondurant Regional Trailhead, which was voted the #1 trailhead at the Iowa Bicycle Coalition Bike Expo in January 2016. The trail will connect to the Chichaqua Valley Trail and eventually complete a 35-mile loop of the Gay Lea Wilson Trail. The loop includes a tunnel under Highway 65 for bicyclists and pedestrians, joining separated parts of Bondurant and connecting the park with the trail to Altoona. This project seeks to extend the trail from Grant Street, through Gateway Park, and to the future location of the tunnel. The plan also provides for trail-related amenities, such as bike racks and parking spaces. Chichaqua Valley Trail usage counts have significantly increased from 820 trail users in May/June 2012 to 7,507 trail users in May/June 2015. This project includes the beautification of Highway 65 with the addition of native grasses, plants and trees, as specified in the vision plan. The IDOT has agreed to provide a dynamic and beautiful entry point that is naturally landscaped along the corridor that begins at I-80 and ends at the Chichaqua Bottoms Greenbelt. The project will appeal to people who are interested in outdoor recreation, public art, and native landscaping.
